

Over het ensemble

The name 'Estehaagse Ensemble' is a play on 'Esterhazy', the palace where Haydn worked, and 'Haagse', meaning of Den Haag, the city where the ensemble is based.

It was founded by baroque violinists James Hewitt (graduated a few years ago from the Royal Conservatory of Den Haag with Pavlo Beznoziuk, and now teacher of historical improvisation there), and Xiangji Zeng (currently studying at the Royal Conservatory with Lucy van Dael). They specialise in chamber music on historical instruments, working together regularly as a duo, but also as a string trio, and as a baroque trio sonata ensemble.

Repertoire ranges from the seventeenth to early nineteenth centuries, and the ensemble plays in venues ranging from churches throughout the Netherlands to private living room concerts.
